Here we have another beautiful example of that admirable adaptation of structure, to the necessities and conditions of every form of existence, which is alike manifest whether our investigations be directed to the beings which exist around us, or to the structure of those which have lived and died and passed away, ere man, and the animals which are his contemporaries, were called into existence. Reflecting upon these extraordinary facts, may we not enquire, with the illustrious Cuvier, At what period was it, and under what circumstances, that turtles and gigantic lizards lived in our climate, and were shaded by forests of palms, and arborescent ferns. It is a very natural question to ask, how came the bones of an animal which fed exclusively upon vegetable food in a marine deposit, surrounded with sea shells and the remains of fish which lived...
