You will remember that David married Saul s daughter Michal; he, however, had other wives, among whom was Abigail, who had been the wife of the miserly and churlish Nabal, whom he married because she had shown so much good feeling and generosity to him and his men, when they were in distress through Saul s persecution. By these wives he had several children; but they did not prove much comfort to him. Some, indeed, of the miseries L in his family were inflicted by God, expressly for his own grievous sins, as we shall presently see; and others he brought directly upon himself, by his over-indulgence of his children, especially Amnon and Absalom. Of the former, it is said, that his father had never at any time contradicted him; and as to the latter, who was remarkably handsome, it is very clear that David was so partial to him, that we can easily believe, especially when we look at his subsequent conduct, that he must have been very indulgently treated by David. But I am rather anticipating. Among the chief men about the person of David, was Abner, who had been Saul s general, when David had killed Goliath, and who, thinking himself not sufficiently appreciated by Ishbosheth, whose cause he had at first maintained, went over to David. The three sons of Zeruiah were also champions of David. Of these Asahel, who was as fleet as a roe, was treacherously stabbed by Abner; and...
