Excerpt: . . . 11 It is true that we have taken many actions over the last 2 years, and we might pat ourselves on the back and say we have done all that we can. But the reality is that we have not done all that we should be doing. Stopping the genocide now would be a relief to the Darfurians left alive. But it would be a cold message and comfort to the quar-ter of a million already killed and millions displaced and maimed. We saw the drawings of the children when we were there, and they showed very clearly the government planes in their drawings. They showed us machetes with blood dripping from them. We were told by the actual manager of the hotel that the Janjaweed would go in, and they wouldnt kill the people all at one time....
