Had she been dazzled with the splendours of a throne, and mounted it with the eagerness so natural to her youth, half the glory that invests her name would have been dimmed. The night before her execution, after having long been engaged in her devotions, she I remember the question being asked on the spot so hallowed by her memory, and in a party consisting of several not unknown to literature, and all confessed they had no clear conception on the subject. took up a Greek Testament, and having attentively perused it for some time, she wrote, on some blank pages at the end, that most godly and learned exhortation to her sister, Lady Katherine, which has justly been admired as one of the most surprising epistles ever penned by a person on the very verge of eternity. She also wrote a letter to her father, full of tenderness, respect, and affection, and having performed this last sisterly and filial duty, she again knelt in prayer, and then sank into a tranquil sleep. Heylin thus describes her conduct on the last morrow: -- The fatal morning being come, the Lord Guilford earnestly desired the officers that he might take his farewell of her: which, though they willingly permitted, yet upon notice of it she advised the contrary, assuring him that such a meeting would rather add to his afflictions than increase that..
